Certification to ISO 9001 or 9002 (quality assurance system)

Dear Mr. Bill Tao,

Referring to the a.m. subject we would like to advise as follows:

We hold a number of certificates for some specific WEICON products e.g. we obtained a "Marine Certificate" on behalf of the Germanischer Lloyd, German TÜV, NSF and many other certified German testing institutes.

Nevertheless, our company decided, for the time being, not to be ISO-certified in order to maintain our flexibility not only in our internal organisation and process systems, but also in our ability to better meet special customer and market requirements in the fields of product supply and service.

Although we took this decision we would like to point out that we are a reliable partner for many customers (automotive manufactures themselves as well as subcontractors for the automotive sector) in the automotive field for many years. Of course we do have our company own quality assurance system.

In addition all our raw material suppliers and sub-contracted compounders and fillers are certified either to ISO 9001 or 9002.

Hopefully, the given information will be satisfactory.

Best regards,
WEICON GmbH & Co. KG
